

IDESTROY

Since bursting on the scene in 2016 with their debut EP "Vanity Loves Me" IDEstroy have seen their infectious brand of punk rock grow from sweaty DIY hometown shows in Bristol, to packed out venues across the UK and Europe.

Their first show outside of their hometown was at Anfi Rock Sound Festival, Spain. They were invited back a year later to perform on the main stage. Their latest EP release "Pure Joy of Life" has seen them receive bucket loads of support from the likes of Kerrang! & BBC Introducing.

The trio recently played a two week UK tour as main support for steam punk legends "The Men That Will Not Be Blamed For Nothing" before heading off to Germany for a two week headline tour of their own.

It's no secret that IDEstroy love to play live and throw every last drop of energy into doing so. In their short time together they have nearly 200 gigs under their belt. From big stages such as Bristol Pride and Rebellion Festival to acoustic sessions for BBC introducing, Sofar Sounds and Glastonbury Festival, proving there's not a single thing that can faze them.

IDEstroy are now working on their debut album, set for release in 2019. It guarantees to be a hell of a lot of fun and most importantly, loud!

REVIEWS

"IDEstroy really have delivered the goods with their second EP, an explosion of riotous energy that makes you want to get up and throw something, or possibly yourself, across the room." - Kerrang! Magazine

"Pure Joy of Life should propel them into the next level - radio, TV, festivals and stardom." - Louder Than War

"They're fun, and angry, and angry, and fun, and loud and raucous." - Freq Magazine

"Punk has never been delivered in quite the way IDEstroy do it, it's great to hear old influences and inspirations being taken to fresh new places. I thoroughly enjoyed this party with their punk." - MetalTalk

The latest EP from Bristol party punk trio IDEstroy is just what the doctor ordered after all the freaky-ass weather of the last few weeks. It's bright, catchy as hell, and above all... fun. [...] Top work all round, really.
